Dear Mr. Casey:

It is my pleasure to send you Congressman Bud Shuster's exciting new book, Believing in America.

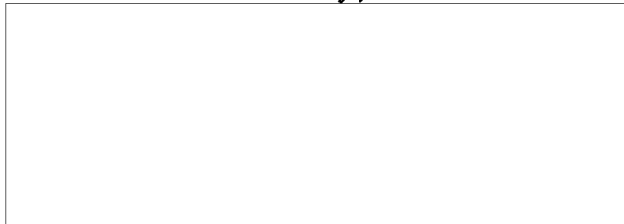

Rooted in reality, its message of optimism for the future of our country transcends political parties or ideologies. Easily readable, yet filled with hard evidence, Believing in America puts our problems in perspective and focuses on our enormous strengths to paint a clear, positive vision of what tomorrow can be.

Looking at America from the dark days of the Great Depression and World War II, through the present and into the future, Congressman Shuster forcefully makes the case that America is a land where dreams can still come true.

Having built our company in just 36 years from a local manufacturer of farm wagons to a multi-national company that is the world leader in hydraulic cranes, we at Grove Manufacturing can identify quite personally with the message of the Congressman's book.

I hope you enjoy Believing in America as much as I have. In my judgment, it is truly a much needed, extraordinary book - - one that gives us solid reasons for feeling good about our country.

Cordially,
